Since I complained Mr. Taylor to you, I know that his revenge will come to me. Yes, it really occurred. On last Friday, Dec 16, the police who never showed up came to the court. I can imagine that Mr. Taylor did a lot of work to help that police and a young lady, his coworker, papering. During the court hearing, the most important questions the young lady asked to the police were exactly match what I told to Mr. Taylor on Sept 23. For example, one question was: "can you explain the reason why it is so long from where she was speeding to where she received the ticket?" I am not complaining about the question, but the tricky part is how does the Mr. Taylor's coworker (the young lady) knows there was a long distance between where I was speeding to where I got the ticket. It just what I mentioned to Mr. Taylor on Sept 23. It indirectly indicates that the information Mr. Taylor provided in his response was the false information. What he wrote:

3. On 9/23/2022, ...She had no paperwork and could not articulate a defense. She stated that she was traveling under the speed limit, but had no proof of this. ...

Mr. Taylor was not only lying on me, and made fake document to court, but also provided all false information for your investigation. I believed that his conduct was obviously not appropriate.
