On November 23, 2021 Deputy Morgan Allen sent me a text asking if I could give her a call when I had a second. Upon calling Deputy Allen she informed me that her ex-husband Ryan Allen was at it again. She stated that he had made a post on Facebook which stated the following;

Public Inquiry:

If you knew of a law enforcement officer who was in a romantic, live-in relationship with a convicted felon (car theft crimes); as well as other convictions like aggravated trespass; and also knowingly allowing said convict to drive while unlicensed, would you trust said law enforcement officer to have any amount of integrity; let alone be trusted to actually enforce the law? Keep in mind, the very department that employs said officer supposedly has a strict policy against such associations, yet even after knowing of such facts still employs the officer. Let me clarify: The department has active knowledge of the scenario presented above.

I told Deputy Allen that he was allow to post whatever he wanted to post as he was not mentioning any names nor was he sending it to her. Deputy Allen was upset about all of this and venting to me how much this upsets her. She stated that she feels like he gets away with everything. I told Deputy Allen that my remedy to all of this would be to just ignore it and get off of social media. Deputy Allen stated that this was hard considering everything was being sent to her by other friends etc.
